The primary purpose of this funding is for the planning, research, production, and installation of The Charleston Museum's "Beyond the Ashes: The Lowcountry's New Beginnings" permanent exhibit (aka "From Civil War to Civil Rights" exhibit). With the completion of this project, the Museum's galleries will tell the complete story of Lowcountry cultural history from Native Peoples to the 21st century and natural history from 400 million years ago to the current epoch. As part of the permanent galleries, the exhibit will be an important educational resource for state residents for decades to come as well as contribute to the Museum's ability to attract tourists to our state. Guests from every county in South Carolina and every state in the country visit the Museum to learn about the region's history. School groups also regularly visit the Museum from the tri-county area and other parts of the state, and topics covered in the exhibit are important components of South Carolina social studies curricula.
